Silo Point - The New Urban Experience

Fort McHenry Business Association
Spring 2009

Silo Point, the new urban experience, has officially opened its doors. The old grain elevator that used to be the worlds largest and fastest has been transformed into one of Baltimore's finest communities. Recently winning "Community of the Year" at The National Home Builder's Show in Las Vegas, this community is certain to wow you.

The spectacular Grand Opening was held in October. Entertainment and fine cuisine by Chef's Expressions were perfectly suited to the 1,100+ guests that night. Guests were not only able to "sample" some of the condominium features right in the sales salon, they were also treated to a tour of model condominiums and were able take in what may be the best view of the harbor ever, plus the lifestyle amenities that Silo Point has to offer. Style Magazine, the Baltimore Ravens, CEO Magazine, Human Rights Campaign, and Governors O'Malley's Office are just a few of those that have transformed Silo Point's space into their own.

As Silo Point nears the end of construction, two new restaurants will be opening as well. The first is a new creation by Michael Marx at the helm (previous owner of Blue Agave and current owner of RUB).

A second restaurant is in the works (additional information to be disclosed shortly) and is sure to be another Locust Point hot spot. In addition to the new restaurants, over the next few months Silo Point will also be opening the much anticipated Prive Salon & Spa, The Wine Club, the STYLE Sky Lounge, and "Call on Jack" services. More good news: Life F/X Fitness & Wellness Center is now open.
