Starr Systems wins three awards!

Residential Design & Build

9/28/2008

Custom home enhancement systems company Starr Systems Design has been named the Contractor of the Year by The Custom Electronic Design & Installation Association (CEDIA). It also won the Gold Technical Award for Best Large Home Theater, as well as the Gold Technical Award in the Best Special Project category.

CEDIA recognized Starr Systems Design with its Electronic Lifestyles® Industry Awards last week in Denver at the CEDIA EXPO 2008.

"We're thrilled to be recognized for our impeccable work and service. Winning the contractor of the year award is a milestone for our business," says Sean Weiner, president, Starr Systems Design. "By working collaboratively with our customers, we are able to create seamlessly integrated experiences that enhance our customers' homes and businesses through our unique combination of technology and design."

Starr Systems Design works with homeowners, business owners, architects, designers and builders to design, install, create and implement personalized electronic and technical solutions for homes and businesses.
